Figure S1. Network of connected factor phenotypes. Twenty four of the 69 age-associated factor phenotypes have a Spearman correlation of at least 0.8 with at least one other phenotype. These phenotypes show a highly connected structure, likely meaning there are common age effects driving these associations. A key for identifying which pathways correspond to the nodes can be found in Supplementary Table S3.